Mr. Levi P. Morton Imports Contract Laborers.

And Pays Them Much Less Than the Current Wages Here.

A Serious Matter for the Republican Candidate for Vice-President.

MR. MORTON YERY RETICENT ABOUT IT

More than a week ago THE EVENING WORLD became aware that Mr. Levi P. Morton, Republican candidate for Vice-President, had brought to this country foreign laborers under contract. Since then reporters have the allegations required the utmost carefulness as to accuracy and detail, and for this reason the story was held back until to-day.

It is astounding but true that the gentleman put forward for the second office in the United States by the Republican party, which claims to be the friend and protector of the American laborer, has gone abroad for his own help and imported contract laborers at who was with him: 'That fellows knows too about half the wages paid the same class of workmen here.

Whether in so doing Mr. Morton has violated the letter of the Contract Labor law is a delicate question, on which there may well be a conflict of opinion, and which probably depends upon whether gardeners and farm | him. laborers may be considered "domestic servants."

Most of Mr. Morton's servants are foreign, but it is with the cases of two under-gardeners. John Boyd and Lachlan Forbes, that THE EVENING WORLD deals. These Mr. Morton engaged in London last winter and sent over here to take charge of his greenhouses at Rhinebeck, after first compelling them to sign a contract that they would work for him for two years at the rate of wages named in the contract. This was $34 a month for Boyd and $30 a month for Forbes without board. The former was afterwards induced to remain at Mr. Morton's place by an ner in which he had been treated. Forbes went away and is now foreman of the greenhouses of William K. Vanderbilt's place at Oakdale, L. I.

Forbes is a bright, intelligent-looking young man of twenty-six, and to a representative of THE EVENING WORLD he told a very interesting story of his dealings with Mr. Morton.

FORBES'S STORY. "Both Boyd and myself," he said, "had good positions at Veitch & Co.'s nurseries in London last winter, when Mr. Morton sent word from Italy to Mr. Veitch asking him to select two first-class flower gardeners for him to send out to his place in the States.

" He said he had a magnificent place and and the finest greenhouses in the country, and wanted only the best men.

"Mr. Veitch spoke to us about it and we thought we would like to go, so he sent on to Mr. Morton our recommendations and a statement of the wages we expected, which were £10 and £9 respectively a month, for Boyd had had more experience than I. Mr. Morton soon wrote back that these were too high and proposed to give us $30 and $34 each, and wanted us to call on him as soon as he came to London.

"We hesitated a good deal at first," but finally, at the advice of friends, we decided to consider the matter, and when Mr. Morton came to London in February last we both went to see him. We were obliged to go three or four times, but at last we saw him and he gave us such a glowing account of his magnificent estate in America that we hesitated no longer.

"When he saw our willingness he told us to call the next day and sign the contract. We were there on time, and when he met us he pulled out a contract, written on one sheet of paper, for us both to sign, and read it to us.

THE CONTRACT THEY SIGNED. "I don't remember what the exact wording of the contract was, but part of it read

"WE, THE UNDERSIGNED, HEREBY AGREE TO GIVE OUR SERVICES AS UNDER-GARDENERS TO LEVI P. MOR-TON FOR THE PERIOD OF TWO YEARS, BEGINNING MARCH 1, 1888.

The wages, $34 and $30, were mentioned, and Mr. Morton agreed to pay our expenses and passage money out. MR. MORTON PAID THEIR PASSAGE OVER. That is the last that either of us saw of pocket and said everything would be all right. We did not see him again till May, when he returned from Europe. He provided us with passage tickets, and we came over in in Europe that we were disappointed in the Egypt, which arrived here about the end | Ellersiie, but I would not say anything

He was walking around the greenhouses, when he saw me and asked me my name. I told him, and then without any further conversation, I said to

"'I suppose Mr. McLannan, the head gardener, has told you that I intend to leave at the end of May, Mr. Morton?'

" He seemed very much surprised and re plied: 'So you are going to leave, are you? Well, I should like to see you do it.'

"I told him that I was going, nevertheless, and said that the wages were very unfactory.

"WELL, TOU HAVE A CONTRACT WITH ME." " Well, you have a contract with me,' he said, 'and I should like to see you break it. I will have you arrested.'

"'It is you who have broken your con-tract, Mr. Morton,' I said, 'because things are not as you represented them. You said the place was in fine condition, and we were been patiently at work gathering the facts to get as high wages as any one in the busiwhich verify the story. The importance of ness in this country, and here we are doing laborers' work and getting less than laborers pay.'

"I can't help that,' he said, 'you have got to stick to your contract.

" Well, if it comes to that,' I replied, how about your engaging us over on the other side to come here under contract, isn't that against the laws here?"

"With that he turned on his heel and walked away and I heard him say to the man much.'

"He afterwards said he would not let me go unless I refunded to him the passage money, which he had paid for me, and that if I went away without doing that I would never get another place in this country. PAID BACK THE PASSAGE MONEY.

According to Gardener Forbes, during the nonths of April and May two grooms for the stable, two footmen and six female servants were sent over from England by Mr. Morton, under contracts varying from one to two years. The stablemen and footnen had not left when he went away, but they were on the point of doing so, for in every case they found that the wages they were getting were far below the average paid in this country for the same class of work.

offer of a higher salary, although he in the house after their arrival, but most of them bolted right away the next day, either to New York, where it is supposed they obtained other employment, or went back to England.

> FORBES'S HISTORY. Forbes, who is a Scotchman, began to serve his apprenticeship as a gardener when he was fourteen years old at the Springfield House. a fine old estate near Edinburgh, Scotland. He was afterwards employed as gentleman gardener or foreman at the greenhouses at Ross Hall, Paisley; Broome House, Fulham, London; The Priory, Isle of Wight, and at Sunbury Court, in Middlesex. Boyd was foreman of the gardeners at the country seat of the Earl of Malmesbury, the Earl of Zetlands and other large estates, and was foreman at Veitche's nurseries, in London, the finest in England, when he was engaged by Mr. Morton.

BOYD'S ACCOUNT OF IT.

Boyd was interviewed at his quarters on Morton's estate at Rhinebeck. He is a young Scotchman and says he has letters of recommodation from some of the "biggest pumkins" in England and Scotland. He is Mr. Morton's head gardener and was somewhat reticent. He said that he had signed "a prirate agreement" with Mr. Morton, but not a contract,"

"Of course Mr. Morton did not enter into any contract with Forbes and me," he went on, innocently, "to bring us here to work, because it was only a private agreement between us.

"We saw him several times and finally at a hotel in London we all signed the agreement. We were alone. Mr. Morton took the paper and I have never seen it since.

"The agreement was this way. We (Forbes and I) agreed to come to America and work for Mr. Morton. He was to pay our passage here and give me $34 a month as second gardener and Forbes $30 a month as third gardener. There was no time to my recollection specified in the agreement, but Mr. Morton was to give us a month's notice if he wanted us to leave. "Mr. Morton gave me a check for £21, I think was the amount, to pay the expenses of both of us to Ellerslie. We started at once for America, and when we reached Etterslie our wages were paid by Mr. McClellan, then chief gardener. "When I was advanced to my present position Mr. Morton increased my wages to $50 a month. We have to board ourselves the contract, for Mr. Morton stuck it in his out of our wages, of course, and have had to ever since we have been here.

It is thought that the man was about forty years of age, but the body had been in the water so long that it was impossible to judge accurately. The clothing was fine and well made, and consisted of a blue serge suit, white shirt and underclothing, white socks and low shoes.

A careful examination was made, with a view to a-certaining whether there were any marks of violence upon the body, but the advanced stage of decomposition prevented them from being distinguished, and the police gave up searching for clues in that direction. direction.

The man was nearly six feet tall and well proportioned.

The police think they have perhaps a clue to the identity of the dead man in the name, "John Baker, New York," which appears painted in black letters upon the bottom of the canva: bag, and just now they are making a search for the owner of the bag.

There are eight John Bakers in the New York City Directory—two engineers, a conductor, a driver, a clerk, a hash dispenser, a gentleman and a lawyer. Bo far as could be ascertained to-day none of the above Bakers were missing, nor did any of them claim ownership in the mysterious bag.

The general suspicion in the neighborhood of Gravesend is that the unfortunate man was murdered at one of the low resorts along the shore in that vicinity, and in order to conceal the crime his body was loaded with stones and taken out into the harbor and sunk.

quired to show a Government passport stating that he has never been convicted of any offense.

To Mr. Guenther, who is himself a German, Mr. Boas said that though the passport afforded no information regarding the mental state or physical ability of the emigrant, the agents of the company made careful inquiry as to these matiers, and persons who might become paupers in America were rejected.

Mr. Boas admitted that twenty-five or fifty emigrants arriving from Hamburg had been returned by the Emigration Commissioners as persons liable to become paupers, but declared that no criminals or lunatics Lad ever been found among the steerage passengers on his line.

To Mr. Morrow Mr. Boas explained that a person in Germany desiring to emigrate must apply to the magistrate in his town for a permission. He must show that he is not liable to military service, and the magistrate then issues the passport.

Able-bodied men from eighteen to twenty-one years of age, are liable to military service, but if one is physically imperfect, or has been dismissed from service, he may obtain a permit to emigrate.

"Then the certificate is in security against the emigration of physically imperfect men?" asked Mr. Morrow.

"None. The only safeguard is the anxiety of my company not to bring over emigrants who will be sent back."

To Mr. Guenther, Mr. Boas declared that he had never heard, except in American newspapers, of any society in Germany which had for its object, charitably or otherwise, the promotion of emigration to America.
